

Best Practices for Window and Door Replacement in Wood-Frame Buildings

Revised 2021

About this Guide

Best Practices for Window and Door Replacement in Wood-Frames Buildings is published by the BC Housing in partnership with the FGIA FENBC Region.

The Guide applies current building science and best practices to the replacement of windows and doors in wood-frame residential buildings. It provides practical information and useful guidelines to help ensure these products are replaced in a way that improves the durability of building enclosures in existing buildings.

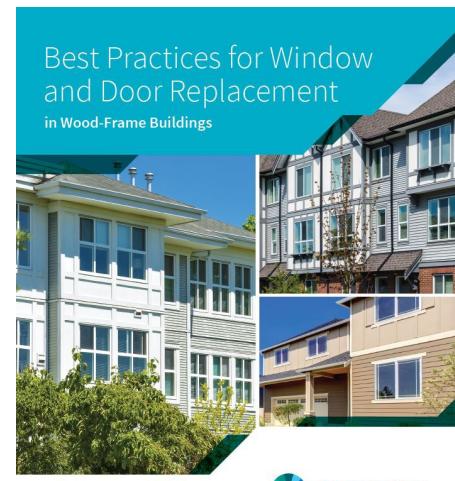

While it addresses the unique challenges presented by BC's coastal climate, which has inspired advancements in building envelope technology that have been adopted around the world, it is also of value to other geographical locations.

This Guide was created to help the industry meet consumer expectations, provide quality installations and achieve high performance for all types of window and door replacement projects.

The guide was developed in partnership with BC Housing.

Topics covered include:

1. Existing Conditions
2. Replacement Product Considerations
3. Installation Considerations
4. Installation Detailing
5. Tables and Figures
6. Glossary
7. Voluntary Specification
8. Rain Exposure Nomograph Worksheets
